THE WORLD RENOWNED

SINGER SEWING MACHINES!

MANUFACTORY,

152, 154, 156, 158, 160 and 162 Mott street, New York.

[illegible]—"The Singer Sewing Machines are the best Machines that can Sew all kinds of Cloth and with all kinds of Thread."

Singer's Letter A Family Machine is the best and cheapest Machine in the world for Family Sewing. There is no doubt as to the value of our Machines for manufacturing purposes, but it is only of late that the public began to learn that the essential elements of a Machine best adapted to the heaviest work, would also be the elements to be embodied in a Family Machine.

We would ask for our Letter A Machine the attention of Vest Makers and Dress Makers, and all those who want Machines for Light Manufacturing Purposes. They embody the principles of the Manufacturing Machines, making, like them, the interlocked stitch and are designed to be as celebrated for FAMILY SEWING and Light Manufacturing purposes as our Manufacturing Machines are for manufacturing purposes in general.

FAMILY SEWING MACHINES are valuable in proportion to the number of things they can do well, [illegible] that ours can do before making a purchase.

All persons requiring information about Sewing Machines, their sizes, prices, working capacities, and the best methods of purchasing, can obtain it by sending for a copy of the SINGER MANUFACTURING COMPANY'S ILLUSTRATED PAMPHLET, which is entirely devoted to the subject. IT WILL BE SENT GRATIS.

THE DUTCH GAP CANAL.—One of the army correspondents of the Philadelphia Inquirer gives an extended account of the nature and progress of Gen. Butler's famous canal project at Dutch Gap. From that account we extract the following portions, presenting the essential features of the enterprise:

SITUATION OF THE CANAL.

About twelve miles below Richmond in a direct line, and some half a mile below Cox's Landing, the James river makes a bend to the south-west, and, after a circuit of over six miles, returns to within about two hundred yards of the same place. The tongue of land enclosed within this loop of the river is known as Farrar's Island, a palpable misnomer, as it is evidently not an island, but a peninsula, the neck of which is a bold, high ridge, towering many feet above the water. It is the neck which bears the name of Dutch Gap. The "Gap" is on the north, or more accurately, north east side.

With reference to our military lines, it may be described as being at the extreme front. The line of works established by Gen. Butler on the Bermuda Hundred side seats its right flank on the exterior side of the curve above mentioned, and thence down to a point directly opposite the "Gap," the river bank, which for that distance forms our front, is lined at intervals with batteries. At the "Gap," we pass to the left bank and stand on the narrow neck of the peninsula. Below, the river is ours with both its banks, but crossing the neck and proceeding upwards, we find the right bank occupied by the enemy's pickets, while the Howlett House battery and a strong line of earthworks, extending up toward Fort Darling, are in sight. The left bank is ours up to Fort Brady, a distance of about two miles by water, and here begins our line of works on the "north side," which, however, diverges from the river and extends toward and beyond the New Market road. This explanation of the locality of the canal was necessary to a distinct apprehension of it.

REASON FOR ITS CONSTRUCTION.

With the river above the Gap open to the enemy, their gunboats were to be added to the obstacles to be overcome in any further attempt to advance our lines. The importance of securing the co-operation of our own is self-apparent. But their ascent above Dutch Gap was barred by formidable obstructions in the six miles of river surrounding Farrar's Island, which must have been removed under fire of rebel batteries, and in addition to the artificial obstructions placed in the channel, was a natural barrier in the stream near the Howlett House, the passage of which could be most advantageously defended by the enemy.

By making a cut two hundred yards in length, through the isthmus, we should avoid these obstructions, as well as the batteries already existing and which would have been erected, and should be practically six miles nearer Richmond by water.

EXECUTION OF THE WORK.

The general direction of operations, with the command of the entire force to be employed whether for digging or other purposes, was entrusted to Brigadier-General B. S. Ludlow, while Major Peter S. Michie was assigned to the post of Chief Engineer.

The force at General Ludlow's disposal comprised about seven hundred colored troops, but about three hundred of them were constantly required for duty as picket guard, and for other services aside from actual labor in the canal.

At first the spade, the pick, and the wheel-barrow were the main instruments employed, but as soon as the cut was sunk deep enough to admit of it a railroad was run up it to facilitate the removal of the dirt. A steam dredge was also brought into requisition at the lower end of the canal to work below the surface of the water, pushing further upwards as fast as the diggers attained the required depth, until it reached about the middle of the canal. At this point a barrier of earth was left for a dam, and below the dam the dredge was left to finish the work, while between the dam and the bulkhead at the upper end, the required fifteen feet below the water level had to be dug out by hand, a steam pump being set in operation to keep it clear of water.

The requisite depth being at length obtained the dam in the middle was removed by the dredge, after being first shattered by a blast of powder. The finishing touches were put to this part of the work a week ago, and since that time it has been possible for any of our gunboats to run clear up to the bulkhead, which was all that remained to be removed. To effect its removal it was to be blasted with gunpowder.

BLOWING DOWN THE BULKHEAD.

This afternoon General Butler, with most of the officers of his staff, rode down to the Gap to witness the culminating act of this great enterprise of which he was the author, and in which he has taken so deep an interest. There was some delay in arranging the fuse, but as the New Year's sun began to redden in the west, and somewhat less than an hour before its setting, the explosion occurred. It was attended with but a slight report, and although dust was thrown to the height of one hundred feet, the concussion was barely sufficient to crack the ice on a mud puddle near the edge of the crevice.

THE RESULT OF THE WORK.

Not having been tried by the actual passage of vessels through it, it would, perhaps, be a little premature for me to assert now that the canal is a positive success; but it is so regarded by those who have the best opportunity of knowing. One of the Richmond papers some time ago spoke of it as one of the greatest engineering enterprises of modern times, and considering its magnitude, it has been accomplished in a remarkably short time.

Arming of the Slaves.

An interesting question has arisen in the Confederate Congress and has been voted down. A great emergency has arisen in the South, secession totters to its final fall, and as the Southern armies become weaker and weaker day by day, the exigency demands of Southern leaders that something shall be done, and done quickly to arrest the impending fate. Drowning men catch at straws, and with the last clutch at power and independence, Richmond votes to arm the slaves, gilding the gray uniform to be won by sable sons of slavish toil, with a promise that the successful issue of the struggle shall bring each sooty hero, not only freedom, but shall win for him and his a home. The measure is a most important one, and viewed with seceder's eyes, if capable of success, it is a most necessary one.

We have only to remember the words heretofore uttered by Southern editors and Southern statesmen, to know that it is in their dire necessity, only, that such a measure is mentioned, not to say seriously entertained, and it is equally certain that the Confederate Congress, in refusing to enact the law necessary to carry out the measure, have acted with a studied caution, the result of deliberate judgment. There is only one reason why slaves are not armed, that reason is simply, that they cannot be trusted with arms; with military discipline, they acquire knowledge, which would, in their case, indeed be power to do and act; and with arms in their hands, they would soon defy the power of Davis, and work out their own salvation at the expense of all who would oppose them, finally, no doubt, adding their numbers to the Federal forces.

General Lee favors the measure, and has faith that the slave population possesses sufficient attachment for their late masters, with the promise of freedom and a grant of land as a benefit to them, to bind them to the sinking fortunes of the Confederacy. Jeff. Davis is supposed to entertain the same views, though the fact does not add strength to the measure, as Davis' influence seems to be on the wane. Virginia and the northern tier of seceding States, vote to arm the slaves, while we see by the Richmond Enquirer that the Gulf States oppose it, and it fails by their opposition. So much is this felt to be the only measure left to hope for success from, that Richmond indulges in unavailing regrets over its failure, predicates defeat as a consequence, and counsels that some one should shoulder the responsibility and represent the power of the people by marshalling the slaves in the field to save the people and the States.

But that is not all that Richmond says in its despair. It upbraids the States who went blindly into secession, dragging Virginia, North Carolina and Tennessee after them, leaving them to bear the brunt of the battle. They say that Virginia was loth to secede, that hesitating long and refusing so to do at first, she finally yielded, at the example and solicitation of her sisters of the Gulf. There is much of sober truth in this. The cotton and sugar States began it, forced it upon the Nation, dared the world to the combat, and rallied Virginia to their support, and now the sons of the Old Dominion lament that they ever yielded. Cotton was not king upon Virginia soil, and all the allegiance Virginia owed was due to the fact that her worn out fields, unfit for cereal productions, lacking the capacity to produce cotton, had become a vast nursery ground from whence poor servile wretches, grown to man's or woman's estate, could be transplanted to the estates of Old King Cotton.

Some intelligent contraband is said to have answered an important question so pointedly, that we may as well quote to illustrate the reason why the Confederate Congress have not armed the slaves. When asked what the negroes would do if mustered in the ranks, he assured the questioner that about half would desert immediately to the Federal ranks, taking their equipments with them, while the remainder would probably stay long enough to fire a shot in the rear before they left. The sage American of African descent was probably right, and acting upon the facts embodied in his opinion, the Confederate legislators, despite the advice of Lee, the opinion of Davis, and the long wail from Virginia, had the good sense to conclude that, while slaves were useful enough as teamsters, or with mattock and spade in hand, they would not be trusty wielders of rebel bayonet. Their faith in Southern independence does not amount to a grain of mustard seed, while they have stealthily whispered to each other that the Yankees are their saviors, and Lincoln their friend.

Emigration.—The Reporter says that there is a large emigration going on from all parts of the United States to Mexico, and draws a horrid picture of citizens driven from the "land of the free" to find a home even in Mexico, to become subjects of "imperialism" rather than to remain with us. Let us add, that several left here on the steamer last week, who, it is said, are bound for the same happy land, and we expect there are more who will follow; but we can spare all of that kind. The Reporter need n't be alarmed as to his "Puritan" friends leaving, we don't hear that any are talking of going soon. In the meantime, we are inclined to doubt the authority that the Reporter claims to refer to, that tells of any great emigration from the Northern or Middle States, though no doubt there soon will be a great rush from Dixie to Mexico or some other warm country.

Branch Mint.—Under date of January 20th, by private letter, we learn that our Delegation in Congress had agreed upon a bill for the location of the Mint at Portland, that McBride had introduced the bill into the House, when it was referred to the Committee on Commerce. The memorial of our Assembly had not reached Washington, but it was hoped it would get there by the time the bill came back from the Committee.

The Appeal is rather sarcastic on San Francisco, and says it will be satisfied with all the gold in the State and a mortgage on the remaining property. Rather pungent, whether true or not.

All the quartz mills in the State of Nevada are said to be at work and doing well at the present time.

Flag Presentation.

Fort Hoskins, O., February 18, 1865.

Editor Oregonian:

When I saw you lately at Portland, I could not give you a promise that I would write, because I anticipated that I should have nothing worth writing about, but that anticipation has been most pleasantly thwarted.

Yesterday, one of the companies stationed here, Company B, First Oregon Infantry, were paraded for the purpose of receiving a beautiful flag which the ladies of Yamhill County had prepared and forwarded to them by the hands of Hon. Henry Warren. The company have become somewhat proficient in their drill and I venture not much in saying that there have been few flag presentations since the commencement of the war the exercises at which were more neat or impressive.

After the company marched into line to the music of their own fife and drum, Hon. Henry Warren came before them bearing the "beautiful banner." Before handing it to Capt. Palmer he read the following note from the fair donors:

Lafayette, Feb. 11, 1865.

Company B, First Regiment, Oregon Infantry—Officers and Soldiers:—Herewith allow us to present to you the flag of our country, and our most friendly greetings, with the assurance that whether it floats o'er you by night or by day, in sickness or health, on garrison or field duty, our prayers to the Most High shall earnestly ascend, invoking His choicest blessings upon you.

The emblem of the National honor and existence has heretofore inspired with patriotic ardor, the brave defenders of our country's liberties—even unto death. Knowing your antecedents, we entertain no fears of a relaxation of your fidelity to the cares of human freedom and the perpetuity of the government of our fathers.

It is true that the stars and stripes in some portions of our beloved land, have been by wicked hands trailed in the dust. Were we disposed to offer an indignity to you, we feel that we could not insult you more than to intimate that you would ever allow in your presence such a [illegible] offence to pass with impunity. We [illegible] to the belief, that the flag is the emblem of our National liberty, and progress in civil affairs, it [illegible] swers to the flaming sword of justice suspended to guard our religious liberties, dearest of all, and inseparately connected with the former class of interests. It has a language more potent for good than any or all of the classes [illegible] of ancient Greece or Rome, than any nationality of ancient or modern times. Its liberal folds unfurled to the breeze speak to us not only of Bunker Hill, of Yorktown, of Saratoga, of New Orleans, of Monterey and Chapultepec, but of modern fields where liberty and law, under its protective aegis, have in deadly conflict grappled with their antagonism. As in the past it has overshadowed all our [illegible] ties; in the future it will [illegible] to all nations throughout the earth, that the ties of a free people together, cannot be severed by light and transient causes.

In conclusion, accept our thanks for the alacrity you have evinced in coming to your country's call, to assist in defending all this holds dear against the encroachments of barbarism [illegible] a more enlightened [illegible], intended to supplant our democratic institutions, with the most hateful despotism the world ever beheld.

(MRS.) N. J. WHITCOMB,
Sec'y Lafayette Christian Commission.

Mr. Warren then addressed the Company as follows:

Fellow-citizens and soldiers: I prize it as a great favor conferred upon me by the ladies of the Christian Commission, of Lafayette, Oregon, in soliciting me to present you this banner, the flag of our country, and I appreciate it the more, because I have known many of you from your youth, now grown to manhood's riper years. In presenting you this, the Stars and Stripes, the glittering emblem of our country's glory—[illegible] half of those ladies who [illegible] it with their own fair fingers, believe, whenever it meets your eye, in peace or in war, that your shouts of devotion, and pledges for its perpetuation, will [illegible] be for the American flag, which you will never permit, while life lasts, to be insulted by foreign foes or domestic traitors. You are engaged in a noble work, that of defending [illegible] cause—and should you fall in consequence of it, how glorious would be a death like that—dying to establish freedom, and for the [illegible] of the Constitution and laws. The citizens of Yamhill county feel assured that if their volunteers, who have so nobly responded to their country's call, are ever called into action, they will give a good account of themselves, and that they will always be found faithful in the discharge of their duties, whether in the camp or on the field of battle.

Mr. Warren then passed the flag to Capt. F. Palmer, who on receiving it said:

Men: As your company commander I receive this flag, and, on your behalf, return most sincere thanks to the generous givers. I charge you so to act that they may never regret their gift.

The Captain then passed the colors to one of the Sergeants, who conveyed it into the midst of the ranks. Lieut. Walker then proposed three cheers for the flag, which were heartily given, and I'm sure "the boys" must have [illegible] for the ladies, which of course were not withheld longer than one could hold his breath.

Lieut. Callen then read appropriate [illegible] and resolutions, which were [illegible] adopted. The company then marched proudly back to their quarters, with the new flag gaily floating over and among their gleaming bayonets. [illegible]

Branding Conscripts.—The San Francisco Monitor publishes an article stating that persons drafted into the Federal army are regularly "branded" with a letter "I," which stands for "inspected." This ridiculous lie will, undoubtedly be copied by every Copperhead paper in Oregon. It is just such stuff that they expect to "save the country" by publishing. They prefer such matter to the truth, which accounts for the number of falsehoods their [illegible] readers see in print.

A British Wreck.—We learn from Mr. Gillette, just arrived from Astoria, that the persons on the pilot boat saw a wreck, supposed to be the Fanny, drifting some three miles outside the bar two days since.

Northern Precinct Sanitary Society, Marion County.

[illegible] [illegible] February [illegible], 1865.

[illegible] the [illegible] met at their school house [illegible] [illegible] with J. W. [illegible] [illegible] as [illegible] Secretary [illegible] [illegible] of aiding the Sanitary [illegible] [illegible] a permanent society [illegible] called the Northern Precinct Sanitary Society [illegible] the following officers to serve [illegible] Rev. Mr. Judkins, President [illegible] [illegible] Dayton, [illegible] [illegible] J. W. Grim, J. Sawyer [illegible] Mrs. White, Mrs. Rene Dayton and Mrs. [illegible] [illegible]. The Society resolved to [illegible] [illegible] at which time [illegible] [illegible]. The first regular meeting will be held on the third Saturday in March at [illegible] o'clock. After a few pertinent remarks from [illegible] J. W. Grim, G. W. Daniels and others, and [illegible] [illegible] for the flag of our [illegible] [illegible] meeting adjourned, with instructions that [illegible] of the meeting be sent to the [illegible] with a request that the same be published.

J. W. GRIM, President.

J. SAM'L SAWYER, Secretary.

The Captured Cotton at Savannah, and what to do with it.—General Sherman gave a [illegible] and square answer to the committee of Savannah merchants who applied to him on the [illegible] [illegible] to restore to its owners the cotton seized by the Government. He told them that the cotton belonged to the Government and that if every fibre of that material and every brick in Savannah were made of gold their possession would not indemnify the government for the loss of blood and treasure expended in the capture of the city and the forts which defended it. This he gave as the opinion of an honest soldier; but he told them at the same time that they might appeal to Washington to obtain their [illegible] if they pleased. This they decided to do, and accordingly a [illegible] was appointed to wait on Mr. Lincoln.

They rest their claims, it appears, upon the statement that this cotton is the property of loyal men, that they saved it from falling into the hands of the rebel General Hardee, and that its seizure by the Government will not only prevent more cotton being sent to Savannah [illegible] the country, but that it will [illegible] the [illegible] to burn the cotton stored at Mobile, Wilmington and other places. This is the argument of the Savannah merchants; but the Government argues that it has a right to sell and will sell this cotton, turn it into gold, and allow the owners to put in their claims afterwards, and prove their loyalty if they can.—N. Y. Herald.

Taxing Mines.—The Rep[illegible] has several times asserted that the Oregonian favored taxing the mines, and seems anxious to prejudice the miners by such assertion. In view of the proposal of the Secretary of the Treasury to have a revenue collected by sale or taxation of the mineral lands, this paper discussed the question, arguing that the matter must be settled by careful legislation, or else [illegible] might kill the goose that lays the eggs. If such a measure was determined on, we suggested that the taxation of bullion would work less hardship than any other system. We believe that most of the mining population, judging by their votes, desire to do their part. The author of the article on that subject published in our columns, was personally interested, and spoke as he thought best for himself and the whole mining interests of the country.

The agricultural prospects of California were never better than for the coming harvest, and it is thought a large amount of grain will be raised there.

Tribute of Respect.—At a Regular Meeting of Oregon Lodge No. 3, I. O. O. F., held at their Hall in Oregon City, March 1st, the following preamble and resolutions were adopted, to-wit:

Whereas, In the dispensation of an all wise Providence He has seen fit to remove by sudden death from our midst our worthy Brother, Joseph [illegible], on the 22d of February, 1865, therefore—

Resolved, That in the death of our Brother this Lodge has sustained the loss of a worthy and valuable member, society has been deprived of a useful citizen, and his family called to mourn the irreparable loss of a kind and affectionate husband and father.

Resolved, That the members of this Lodge deeply sympathize with the family of the deceased in their bereavement, and as a testimonial of their regard for our departed Brother the Charter and Bible of the Lodge be dressed in mourning and the members will wear the usual badge of mourning for [illegible] days.

Resolved, That the Secretary be directed to deliver a copy of the foregoing preamble and resolutions to the widow of our deceased Brother under the Seal of the Lodge; also furnish a copy to the Oregonian and Argus [illegible] for publication, and spread the same upon the Records of the Lodge.

ST. STEPHEN'S CHAPEL, [illegible] Madison and Fourth streets. Rt. Rev. Bishop Scott, Pastor. Services 10½ A. M. Sabbath School after morning service.

MEETING OF THE COMMON COUNCIL.—The regular weekly meeting of the Common Council was held at the Council Chamber at seven o'clock last evening.

Mayor Failing occupied the Chair.

The following members were present: Councilmen Bennett, Cook, Frazar, Gradon, Hoffman, Gilmore, McCraken, and Starr. Absent—Mr. Robertson.

The records of the previous meeting were read by the Clerk and approved by the Council.

A petition to have the grade of Jefferson street raised eighteen inches was referred to the committee on streets and public property. Also a petition to have the grade of Third street changed was referred to the same committee.

A petition from Captain Joyce, of Washington Artillery Company, asking the payment of $65 00 for the cost of salutes fired under order from the Commander-in-Chief, in honor of the restoration of the Old Flag on Sumpter, and 100 additional guns fired by request of prominent citizens, was laid upon the table temporarily.

A remonstrance was received signed by A. B. Hallock, against the proposed improvement of Front street, in front of lot 1 block 6, stating that he had been to considerable expense to plank that portion of the street, in accordance with former instructions, and that it was yet in a good state of preservation. That to be compelled, at this time, to take it up and cobble would be a case of great hardship. On motion the remonstrance was laid on the table.

The committee on Judiciary reported adverse to allowing the petition of H. Cooke & Co. for a reduction of $1,000 on the assessment of lot 7 block 27. Also an opinion of the City Attorney, adverse to the reduction, and on motion the report was adopted.

City Treasurer Morse returned the assessment roll, and a report of the amount of taxes collected on the same.

On motion of Councilman Starr it was referred back to the Treasurer, with instruction to make a delinquent tax list and report at the next meeting of the Council.

City Recorder McCoy reported that the proceeds of the Recorder's Court, during the last month, were $440 95 in currency, and $50 in coin. The report was adopted and ordered to be placed on file.

Warrants were ordered to be drawn on the appropriate funds for the following claims against the city: M. Cabot, $3; William Young, $20; Hurgren & Shindler, $5; N. Northrup, $50; Gas Light Co., $218; Water Co., $50; H. R. Meeker, $150; M. Allen, $14 75; Wail Bros., $40; Drs. Chapman & Watkins, $10.

On motion, the petition of Capt. Joyce was taken from the table and $65 was voted to Washington Artillery Company.

An ordinance appropriating $2,000 to the police and auxiliary fund, was read the first and second time; and on motion, rule 28 was suspended and the ordinance was read third time and passed.

On motion, the claims audited against the Police and Sanitary fund were taken up, and warrants ordered to be drawn for the following claims against the city: T. Sanders, $100; W. B. Blake, $100; H. L. Hoyt, $22; H. L. Hoyt and Deputies, for fees and board of prisoners, $329 50; H. Campher, $2.

Councilman Cook reported that the bell ordered for No. 4's Engine House had been shipped, and would arrive here in June next. Cost about $575 in currency.

On motion, Council adjourned.

THE HARMONY CONCERT.—The Concert at Turn Verein Hall night before last, proved to us not only the existence of amateur and professional musical talent of a high order in our midst, but that such is well appreciated from the presence at the Concert of the choice and fashion of our town. We would gladly, (if time and space allowed it) specially refer to the various parts of the programme, but we can under the circumstances do no more than claim for this Concert the palm of the season. The selections were from the standard musics of the day and the execution of the orchestral parts were truly fine. Of the singing, great praise is due to the industry of the performers; and it may be well said, that the songs whether in solo or in quartette were rendered with taste and effect. With this brief notice we conclude, unwilling, however, to dismiss the subject without congratulating Prof. West upon the successful direction of the Concert, and sincerely expressing the hope that we may often have the opportunity of spending as pleasant an evening as that we enjoyed at this Concert.

RECORDER'S COURT.—The principal business before the Recorder yesterday was the trial of the defendants in one of the cases which we alluded to yesterday morning, concerning the tussle at the City Jail between "roughs" and Policemen Saunders and Ball. Only one was tried, Judge Stout appearing for the defense, and City Attorney Dolph for the prosecution. The case was reserved for decision this morning, and the remainder continued. The attorney for the defence made use of some severe strictures upon the OREGONIAN in regard to its course in the matter, which may be imprudent for us to attend to at present.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY.—Our friends of Irish nativity are preparing for a celebration of this honored day in this city. Last year the various societies of Portland and Vancouver commemorated the anniversary of the Patron Saint at the latter place, and we presume they join to do honor to the occasion here for 1865. There will be parades and the usual exercises during the day, which will wind up with a grand Ball at Turn Verein Hall in the evening.

MILL FOR OLYMPIA.—Mr. Monastes, of the Portland Foundry, has lately finished at his establishment the gearing and machinery for a flouring mill on Puget Sound, to be located at Olympia. It is to run three set of stones, and is built for Messrs. Crosby & Co. Washington Territory has abundant resources to supply several such establishments with the needful raw material, if her farmers will improve of them.

SANITARY.—The ladies of the Sanitary Commission have met with sufficient success to enable them to serve a lunch at Turn Verein Hall from 12 o'clock M. until 2 P. M. to-day, and we trust their efforts to obtain assistance for our soldiers will be encouraged by a liberal number of guests. In the evening the same Hall will be opened for speeches, music and a supper.

MILITARY MOVEMENT.—We learn from the Mountaineer that private orders have been received at Fort Dalles, for the movement of Captains Powell and Borland's Companies, the former to Fort Walla Walla and the latter to Colville. The Companies will leave here on the morning of the 7th inst., and will take the steamer at Celilo for Wallula.

FOR VICTORIA.—The steamer Geo. S. Wright, S. F. Lewis Commander, is now in port, and will receive cargo so as to leave for Victoria on Monday evening. She has been very materially improved, and when finally finished will be a handy craft for this trade.

THE LATE STORM.—By telegraph we are advised that the late storm, which has given this place the appearance so much of a winter in New England, has extended as far as California on the southern and to Puget Sound on the northern coast. From up-country papers we also learn snow has fallen in considerable quantities, quite an extensive sheet.

MORE LABOR LOST.—Thos. Hearnon, Albert Holden and A. A. Wetmore were each committed to jail from Recorder's Court yesterday, in default of payment of fines and cost, the total being for 14 days, which is a loss to the city for want of a chain gang to work such fellows. Jas. Barry paid a fine for disorderly conduct.

RECRUITS.—Sergeant Patton arrived from Salem a few days since with twenty men for the Cavalry service.

THE HILLSBORO MAIL.—The death of Mr. [illegible] Howe, for several years contractor of the Government, to carry the mail from this city to Hillsboro in Washington County, has resulted in a discontinuance of the mail to that place entirely. [illegible] of Mr. Howe's term had expired [illegible] and there are no parties to be found willing to take the agreement at the [illegible] ... the Department would [illegible] ... The heads of the "Department" seem to be literally ignorant, or to [illegible] upon this particular point of service for Oregon, and have generally been satisfied to "lump us off" with the balance of communication, in older and long service communities around the hub, not thinking, perhaps, that the region about us is sparsely settled, with no roads and the other necessary attendants for effective travel, making contractors willing to take at a rate that [illegible] in Oregon is more than [illegible] ... hundred in the East. Our postmaster is endeavoring to make the necessary arrangements for the accommodation of our Washington and Yamhill County neighbors, and until some plan is effected there will scarcely be any reliable communication with them.

AMUSEMENTS.—The five act tragedy of "The [illegible] in Spain," in which Mrs. Macdonald, Mr. Taylor, Mr. Waldron, and the strength of the new company are to appear, will be enacted at Willamette Theatre this evening. The entertainment will conclude with the new farce of "My Son Diana," Miss B. as Diana.

CATTLE FOR THE [illegible].—Captain Ankeny has shipped, by the stock barge and steamer Julia, five hundred head of beef fat cattle, for the Oro Fino or Salmon river gold mining regions. The steamer took a part of them on Friday, and the remainder yesterday.

SNOW AT THE CASCADES.—The steamer Wilson G. Hunt was delayed five hours yesterday, on her usual route to the Cascades, in consequence of the deep snow, which prevented the cars of the portage from making their trips in the usual time.

THE PACIFIC.—The Pacific will leave San Francisco on Monday, coming to Portland, and return direct from this place.

WEEKLY COMMERCIAL REVIEW.

PORTLAND, March [illegible], 1865.

Travel with the Upper Columbia [illegible] and the rush of travel is considerable—both ways [illegible]. Steamers can only ascend to Umatilla, however, in consequence of low water on the rapids of that name.

Live stock is going forward in considerable numbers. The past six days of the O. S. N. Company's steamers show the following number of head, which include cattle and sheep only:

Feb. 25th	per Julia [illegible]	per Hunt	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	40
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	35
March 1st	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	200	[illegible]	58
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
	790		283

Aggregate total forward [illegible] 1,073

The only departures for the week have been the steamer Diana and the bark H. W. Seaman for San Francisco, with valuable cargoes. The Geo. S. Wright has made her appearance fitted out for regular trade with Oregon and the British Colonies on the north coast. The steamer Sierra Nevada is due to-day from San Francisco. She will be followed by the Pacific on the 7th, which will go no farther north, but will return from this port. The bark Almy is taking a cargo at Couch's wharf and will have as much offered as she can carry.

Apparently great activity is to succeed the opening of business the present season. The river steamers are engaged in their regular trade, without interruption, notwithstanding the unfavorable weather, which has been cold, with strong north winds, snow, &c. To-day the indications are for pleasant weather with rain, which will brighten the prospects with the interior people.

The markets generally are more than usually quiet.

Wholesale and Jobbing Prices.

PORTLAND, March [illegible], 1865.

The market generally seems to show a better inquiry for most articles of produce—Wheat is scarce, there is in fact none offering, and prices have materially advanced. We quote to-day $1 80@$1 85 ℔ bushel. There has also been a rapid advance in Flour, and the article is now held at $12 and $13 ℔ bbl., with a prospect of a still further advance, which is the result of a scarcity in California, and an increasing demand for breadstuffs.

Oats and other varieties of grain and mill feed, in some demand, at quotations below. A large quantity of the latter put up in extra style at the O. C. Mills for shipping commands a higher price.

Bacon is offering at 20 cts., but jobbers seem hope for holding off. Small lots have been sold on 30 days time at the above rate, which rules the market, from first hands at a less figure, as the last named transactions are usually for cash in hand.

Domestic produce is not very freely offered, and what is brought forward has an unsettled market valuation. We have nothing of importance to record in the line of wholesale or jobbing trade for the week.

Weekly Retail Family Market.

FRIDAY, P. M., March [illegible], 1865.

We propose giving the current retail prices of the staple articles specially interesting to the family trade as a means of guiding the consumer in their purchases and at the same time show the producer a standard for regulating his sale.

Our city does not yet boast of a regularly established Market Place where families and individuals can repair every day to obtain those things pertaining to the larder, but we have some very excellent retail grocers—and the trade is very advantageously supplied by them. Our report below is from the house of O'Connor & Co., dealers in groceries, vegetables, provisions, fish and poultry, and the establishment of R. Pollock.

Mining Stocks and Mining Interests.

PORTLAND, Friday, March [illegible], 1865.

We have advices from South Boise and Owyhee, which contain very flattering accounts of the various mining interests in those localities.

The Morning Star Gold and Silver Tunnel Company have progressed rapidly, and it appears prosperously, in the work they have in charge, having struck three new ledges which show suggestive richness.

Provisions at most kinds were abundant. The snow was fast disappearing, and everything seemed favorable for early operations.

The Hoard Foster lode bids fair to furnish holders of stock in it with dividends in a short time.

We have no transactions of the Stock Board to report.

ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTER [illegible] RELIEVING AND STRENGTHENING.—The history of these plasters would occupy more space than can be spared within the limits of this advertisement. [illegible] the most eminent chemists and physicians of the United States and Europe were consulted as to their composition. They are made porous so that the exhalation of the perspiration can go on sufficiently when the plaster is applied, without, as with other plasters, causing the accumulation of acrid fluid, which corrodes the skin and occasions many unpleasant sensations not necessary for the cure or alleviation of affections for which a plaster is usually applied. India rubber, myrrh, and other choice gums and essences of the vegetable kingdom are the material ingredients of these celebrated plasters. While they are possessed of all the soothing and warming qualities of almost every other plaster of the United States Dispensatory, they are without many of their inconveniences. In the language of one who has experienced much benefit from their application in a chronic disease of the kidney—"They stick closer than a brother, and do not turn like a false friend." For weakness of the back, pains in the side, stomach or chest, and for the [illegible] of the pain attending rheumatism, they are without an equal.

Cure Your Cold, Save Your Lungs.
NEWELL'S
PULMONARY SYRUP
HAS CURED THOUSANDS!
And it will Cure You!
"A Cough is generally the effect of a Cold, which has either been improperly treated, or entirely neglected. When it proves obstinate there is Always reason to fear the consequences, as it then shows a weak state of the lungs, and is often the forerunner of Consumption."—Buchanan's Domestic Medicine.
STOP THAT COUGHING!
Some of you can't, and we pity you. You have tried every remedy but the one destined, by its intrinsic merit, to supersede all similar preparations. It is not surprising you should be reluctant to try something else after the many experiments you have made of trashy compounds foisted on the public as a certain cure; but is really the VERY BEST remedy ever compounded for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Asthma, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis and Consumption. Thousands of people in California and Oregon have been already benefited by its surprising curative powers.
Pulmonary Syrup!
WHAT KILLED HIM!
Dr. Hall, in his "Journal of Health," speaking of the death of Washington Irving, asks the above question, and adds: "He might have remained with us for some years to come, had it not been for advice, kindly intended, no doubt, but given in thoughtlessness and reckless ignorance.
He Had a Cold!
Which, by some injudicious prescription, had been converted into asthma!" Let me say to Dr. Hall that that "prescription" was not
PULMONARY SYRUP.
KEEP IT IN THE HOUSE, use it freely, give it to your children upon the slightest indications of a Cold, and you will thank and speak of it as all do who have become acquainted with its merits.

Bombarded by the ships;

From their red-hot lips?
The masts were [illegible] together
[illegible] lashed to the mast
By the brave Admiral
Lashed to the mast!

Amid the smoke that lowered
The stripes and the stars;
Above the din was heard
The shouts of the tars;

And none stood aghast,
Who saw the Admiral
Lashed to the mast!

The loud roar of the guns,
The shriek of the shells,
The air filled with smoke
And the sulphurous smells;
A hail of [illegible]
Thick falling and fast
Round the brave Admiral
Lashed to the mast!

The deck of the flag-ship
Slippery with gore,
Thundering from every
Huge gun she bore!
The Tecumseh went down

Wept by the Admiral
Lashed to the mast!

O, how it stirs the heart

Pere Antoine's Date-Palm.

A LEGEND OF NEW ORLEANS.

I.—MISS BADEAU.

It is useless to disguise the fact: Miss Badeau is a rebel.

Mr. Beauregard's cannon had not done battering the walls of Sumter, when Miss Badeau was packed up, labeled, and sent North, where she has remained ever since, in a sort of aromatic, rose-colored state of rebellion.

She is not one of your blood-thirsty rebels, you know; she has the good sense to shrink with horror from the bare mention of those heathen who, at Manassas and elsewhere, wreaked their unmanly spite on the bodies of dead heroes: still she is a bitter little rebel, with blonde hair, superb eyelashes, and two brothers in the Confederate service —if I may be allowed to club the statements. When I look across the narrow strait of our boarding house table, and observe what a handsome wretch she is, I began to think that if Mr. Seward doesn't presently take her in charge, I shall.

The preceding paragraphs have little or nothing to do with what I am going to relate; they merely illustrate how wildly a fellow will write, when the eyelashes of a pretty woman get tangled with his pen. So I let them stand— as a warning.

My exordium should have taken this shape:

"I hope and trust," remarked Miss Badeau, in that remarkably scathing tone which she assumes in alluding to the U. S. V., "I hope and trust, that, your five hundred thousand, more or less, men having captured my New Orleans, they will have the good taste not to injure Pere Antoine's date palm."

"Not a hair of its head shall be touched," I replied, without having the faintest idea of what I was talking about.

"Ah! I hope not," she said.

There was a certain tenderness in her voice which struck me.

"Who is Pere Antoine?" I ventured to ask. "And what is this tree that seems to interest you so?"

"I will tell you."

Then Miss Badeau told me the following legend, which I think worth writing down. If it should appear tame to the reader, it will be because I haven't a black ribbed-silk dress, and a strip of point-lace around my throat, like Miss Badeau; it will be because I haven't her eyes and lips and music to tell it with, confound me!

II.—THE LEGEND.

Near the levee, (quay,) and not far from the old French cathedral, in New Orleans, stands a fine date-palm, some thirty feet high, growing out in the open air as sturdily as if its roots were sucking sap from their native earth. Sir Charles Lyell, in his "Second Visit to the United States," mentions the exotic: "The tree is seventy or eighty years old; for Père Antoine, a Roman Catholic priest, who died about twenty years ago, told Mr. Bringier that he planted it himself, when he was young. In his will he provided that they who succeeded to this lot of ground should forfeit it, if they cut down the palm."

Wishing to learn something of Pere Antoine's history, Sir Charles Lyell made inquiries among the ancient creole inhabitants of the faubourg. That the old priest, in his last days, became very much emaciated, that he walked about the streets like a mummy, that he gradually dried up, and finally blew away, was the meager result of the tourist's investigations.

This is all that is generally known of Pere Antoine. Miss Badeau's story clothes these bare facts.

When Père Antoine was a very young man, he had a friend whom he loved as he loved his eyes. Emile Jardin returned his passion, and the two, on account of their friendship, became the marvel of the city where they dwelt. One was never seen without the other; for they studied, walked, ate, and slept together.

Antoine and Emile were prepared to enter the Church; indeed, they had taken the preliminary steps, when a circumstance occurred which changed the color of their lives. A foreign lady, from some far-off island in the Pacific, had a few months before moved into the neighborhood. The lady died suddenly, leaving a girl of sixteen or seventeen entirely friendless and unprovided for. The young men had been kind to the woman during her illness, and at her death, melting with pity at the forlorn situation of Anglice, the daughter, swore between themselves to love and watch over her as if she were their sister.

Now Anglice had a wild, strange beauty, that made other women seem tame beside her, and in the course of time the young men found themselves regarding their ward not so much like brothers as at first. They struggled with their destiny manfully, for the holy orders which they were about to assume precluded the idea of love.

But every day taught them to be more fond of her. So they drifted on. The weak like to temporize.

One night Emile Jardin and Anglice were not to be found. They had flown—but whither, nobody knew, and nobody, save Antoine, cared.

It was a heavy blow to Antoine—for he had half made up his mind to run away with her himself.

A strip of paper slipped from a volume on Antoine's desk, and fluttered to his feet. "Do not be angry," said the bit of paper, piteously: "forgive us for we love."

Three years went by. Antoine had entered the Church, and was already looked upon as a rising man; but his face was pale and his heart leaden, for there was no sweetness in life for him.

Four years had elapsed, when a letter, covered with outlandish stamps, was brought to the young priest—a letter from Anglice. She was dying; would he forgive her? Emile, the year previous, had fallen a victim to the fever that raged on the island; and their child, little Anglice, was likely to follow him. In pitiful terms she begged Antoine to take charge of the child until she was old enough to enter a convent. The epistle was finished by another hand, informing Antoine of Madame Jardin's death; it also told him that Anglice had been placed on a vessel shortly to leave the island for some Western port.

The letter was hardly read and wept over, when little Anglice arrived. On beholding her, Antoine uttered a cry. It was no surprise—she was so like the woman he had worshipped.

A man's tears are more pathetic than a woman's, so is his love [illegible] —not more enduring, or half so subtle, but intenser.

The passion that had been crowded down in his heart broke out and spent its richness on this child, who was to him, not only the Anglice of years ago, but his friend Emile Jardin also.

Anglice possessed the wild, strange beauty of her mother—the bending, willowy form, the rich tint of skin, the large tropical eyes, that had almost made Antoine's sacred robes a mockery to him.

For a month or two Anglice was wildly unhappy in her new home. She talked continually of the bright country where she was born, the fruits and flowers and blue skies. Antoine could not pacify her. By and by she ceased to weep, and went about the cottage with a dreary disconsolate air that cut Antoine to the heart. Before the year ended, he noticed that the ruddy tinge had fled from her cheek, that her eyes had grown languid, and her slight figure more willowy than ever.

A physician was called. He could discover nothing wrong with the child, except this fading and drooping. He failed to account for that. It was some vague disease of the mind, he said, beyond his skill.

So Anglice faded day after day. She seldom left the room now. Antoine could not shut out the fact that the child was passing away. He had learned to love her so!

"Dear heart," he said once, "what is't ails thee?"

"Nothing, mon pere," for so she called him.

The Winter passed, the balmy Spring air had come, and Anglice seemed to revive. In her little bamboo chair, on the porch, she swayed to and fro in the fragrant breeze, with a peculiar undulating motion, like a graceful tree.

At times something seemed to weigh up on her mind. Antoine noticed it, and waited. At length she spoke.

"Near our house," said little Anglice—"near our house, on the island, the palm trees are waving under the blue sky. Oh, how beautiful! I seem to lie beneath them all day long. I am very, very happy. I yearned for them until I grew sick—don't you think so, mon pere?"

"Mon Dieu, yes!" exclaimed Antoine, suddenly. "Let us haste to those pleasant islands where the palms are waving."

Anglice smiled.

"I am going there, mon pere."

Ay indeed. A week from that evening wax candles burned at her feet and forehead, lighting her on her journey.

All was over. Now was Antoine's heart empty. He had nothing to do but to lay the blighted flower away.

Pere Antoine made a shallow grave in his garden, and heaped the fresh brown mold over his idol.

In the genial spring evenings the priest was seen sitting by the mound, his finger closed in the unread prayer-book.

The summer broke on that sunny land; and in the cool morning twilight, and after nightfall, Antoine lingered by the grave. He could never be with it enough.

One morning he observed a delicate stem, with two curiously shaped emerald leaves, springing up from the center of the mound. At first he merely noticed it casually; but at length the plant grew so tall, and was so strangely unlike anything he had ever seen before, that he examined it with care.

How straight and graceful and exquisite it was! When it swung to and fro with the summer wind, in the twilight, it seemed to Antoine as if little Anglice were standing there in the garden!

The days stole by, and Antoine tended the fragile shoot, wondering what sort of blossom it would unfold, white, or scarlet, or golden. One Sunday, a stranger with a bronzed, weather-beaten face like a sailor's, leaned over the garden-rail, and said to him:

"What a fine young date-palm you have there, sir!"

"Mon Dieu!" cried Pere Antoine, "and is it a palm tree?"

"Yes, indeed," cried the man. "I had no idea the tree would flourish in this climate."

"Mon Dieu!" was all the priest could say.

If Pere Antoine loved the tree before, he worshipped it now. He watered it, and nurtured it, and could have clasped it in his arms. Here were Emile and Anglice and the child, all in one.

The years flew by, and the date-palm and the priest grew together—only one became vigorous and the other feeble. Pere Antoine had long passed the meridian of life—the tree was in its youth. It no longer stood in an isolated garden; for homely brick and wooden houses clustered about Antoine's cottage. They looked down scowling on the humble thatched roof. The city was edging up, trying to crowd him off his land. But he clung to it and wouldn't sell. Speculators piled gold on his door-step, and he laughed at them; sometimes he was hungry, but he laughed none the less.

"Get thee behind me, Satan!" said the old priest's smile.

Pere Antoine was very old now, scarcely able to walk; but he could sit under the pliant, caressing leaves of his tree, and there he sat until the grimmest of speculators came to him. But even in death Pere Antoine was faithful to his trust. The owner of that land loses it, if he harms the date-tree.

And there it stands in the narrow, dingy street, a beautiful, dreamy stranger, an exquisite foreign lady whose grace is a joy to the eye, the incense of whose breath makes the air enamored. A precious boon is she to the wretched city; and now that loyal men again walk those streets, may the hand wither that touches it urgently!

"Because it grew from the heart of little Anglice," said Miss Badeau, tenderly.

REASONS FOR REFUSING TO FIGHT.—M. Gallenga, the Italian M. P., and lately correspondent in Denmark of the London Times, had arrived back at Turin. He found awaiting him a challenge to fight a duel, caused by something he had said in Parliament. In reply he said: "I formally refuse to subject myself to a barbarous usage too long prevalent among us, to the detriment of Parliamentary dignity and to the liberty of speech. The courage necessary for refusal is tenfold that of accepting." M. Gallenga is worthy of the highest commendation. In Paris—and perhaps in France in general—duelling has lost caste. "Gentlemen" have set their faces against it, adopting the English tone in this respect.

Wilks having prepared himself on one occasion to speak in the House of Commons on a question interesting to the popular feelings at the period in which he lived, found great difficulty in making himself heard. At last he called out to the Speaker in the [illegible] pitch of his voice: "Mr. Speaker, all the clamor and opposition to my speaking will avail you nothing. Speak, sir, I must, for my speech has been given to the Public Advertiser these six hours, and is probably by this time in the press." This address put the house in a good humor, and he was immediately heard with good attention.

The editors of some of the political papers say that truth is their polar star. They certainly don't get any nearer to it than they do to the North star.

"[illegible] The Plantation Bitters have cured me of a derangement of the Kidneys and urinary organs that has distressed me for years. It acts like a charm.
C. C. MOORE, 254 Broadway, N. Y."

The Plantation Bitters make the weak strong, the languid brilliant, and are exhausted nature's great restorer. They are composed of the celebrated Calisaya Bark, Wintergreen, Sassafras, Roots, Herbs, &c., all preserved in perfectly pure St. Croix Rum.

S. T.—1860.—X.

Persons of sedentary habits troubled with weakness, lassitude, palpitation of the heart, lack of appetite, distress after eating, torpid liver, constipation, &c., deserve to suffer if they will not try them.
They are recommended by the highest medical authorities, and are warranted to produce an immediate beneficial effect. They are exceedingly agreeable, perfectly pure and harmless.
NOTICE.—Any person pretending to sell Plantation Bitters in bulk or by the gallon, is a swindler and impostor. It is put up only in our patent log cabin bottle. Beware of bottles refilled with imitation deleterious stuff, for which several persons are already in prison. See that every bottle has our private United States Stamp over the cork unmutilated, and signature on steel plate side label.
Sold by respectable dealers throughout the habitable globe.

It is well known that the Medicinal effect of Protoxide of Iron is lost by even a very brief exposure to air, and that to maintain a solution of Protoxide of Iron, without further oxidation, has been deemed impossible.
In the Peruvian Syrup this desirable point is attained by combination IN A WAY BEFORE UNKNOWN; and this solution may replace all the proto-carbonates, citrates and tartrates, of the Materia Medica.

IODINE WATER.
IODINE WATER IS THE MOST IMPORTANT DISCOVERY of modern chemistry. Indeed it is impossible to over estimate its influence as a remedial agent. Iodine has been considered the most useful article in Materia Medica, and many of the most scientific and practical doctors and physicians have investigated its effects upon the human system. It is to act upon the HEART,
LIVER, KIDNEYS,
DIGESTIVE ORGANS and GLANDULAR SYSTEM, and to have great control over
SCROFULOUS AFFECTIONS.
Notwithstanding the zeal and ability which have been devoted to its investigation, it remained almost useless until Dr. Henry Anders, a physician and chemist of New York, after years of patient labor and experiment, discovered a method of process which enabled him to dissolve without a solvent. This, considered impossible by the scientific world, is attested by certificates of analysis from Dr. J. R. Chilton, of this city, and Prof. Booth, U. S. Mint, Philadelphia. The importance of this discovery was so highly appreciated by the Faculty that it was published in the Medical journals, and its use recommended to practitioners. See "American Medical Monthly," July 6, 1856, page 76.
PURE IODINE IN PURE WATER,
This valuable medicine is now available to the public for the cure of Scrofula in all its manifold forms, Consumption, Cancer, Heart, Liver and Kidney Diseases, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Nervous Affections, Dyspepsia, Bronchitis, etc.
AS A TONIC
Its operation is beyond by strengthening the digestive organs and improved nutrition of the body is the result of the employment of Iodine. The patient recovers flesh, strength and color; [illegible] pale, relaxed and feeble, he becomes full, strong and florid.
Full directions accompany each bottle.
Sold by all Druggists. Price, $1 per bottle. Prepared by Dr. H. Anders & Co., Physicians and Chemists, New York.

ALLEN'S
LUNG BALSAM!
The Remedy for Curing
CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS,
Asthma, Croup,
Diseases of the Throat, Bronchitis, Pains and Oppression of the Chest and Lungs, Difficult Breathing and all the Diseases of the Pulmonary Organs.
ITS ACTION IS EXPECTORANT, ALTERATIVE, SUDORIFIC, SEDATIVE, DIAPHORETIC AND DIURETIC, which renders it one of the most valuable remedies known for curing diseases of the lungs. It excites expectoration, and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; CHANGES THE SECRETIONS AND PURIFIES THE BLOOD, heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect, that it is WARRANTED TO BREAK UP THE MOST DISTRESSING COUGH IN A FEW HOURS' TIME, if not of too long standing. IT IS WARRANTED to give entire satisfaction even in the MOST CONFIRMED CASES OF CONSUMPTION; IT IS WARRANTED NOT to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies) or affect the head, as it contains no Opium in any form. IT IS WARRANTED TO BE PERFECTLY HARMLESS to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. THERE IS NO REAL NECESSITY FOR SO MANY DEATHS BY CONSUMPTION, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it, if only taken in time.
Sold by all Druggists. Price $1 per bottle.

THE ASTONISHING SUCCESS WHICH HAS ATtended this invaluable medicine renders it the most valuable one ever discovered. And in every disease in any way connected with the disorder or decay of the PROCREATIVE FUNCTIONS. Persons about to marry, if conscious of any weakness, should take the CONSTITUTION WATER,
Whether broken down by excess, weak by nature, or impaired by sickness, the unstrung and relaxed organization is at once reinforced, revivified and built up. Well may this celebrated medicine be called the
MEDICAL WONDER.
The stooping, trembling victim of depression and debility becomes a new man; he stands erect, he moves with a firm step; his mind, which was previously sunk in gloom or an almost idiotic apathy, becomes bright and active; and he goes forth regenerated, conscious of new vigor. The medicine reaches the CONSTITUTION itself, and restores it to its normal condition.
IRRITATION OF THE NECK OF THE BLADDER, INFLAMMATION OF THE KIDNEYS, AND CATARRH OF THE BLADDER,

URINATING,
CALCULUS, GRAVEL,

OR MILKY DISCHARGES AFTER URINATING.
For these diseases it is truly a sovereign remedy, and too much cannot be said in its praise. A single dose has been known to relieve the most urgent symptoms. TRY [illegible]
